

Flux sign significant defence contract

Asnaes, Denmark February 2009

Flux has signed a significant contract with one of Spain's leading supplier of defence electronics.

Flux will deliver very complex transformer units containing both low voltage and high voltage transformers and will be responsible for the full unit assembly and screening tests including thermal testing.

Manufacturing is expected to start in March 2009 and will run until the end of 2011. The contract represents a value of several million DKK.

The selection of Flux, consolidates Flux's position as the preferred supplier of high quality solutions for critical applications
